Kangaro Industries Limited enforced their trade mark/trade dress rights by obtaining an ex-parte ad-interim injunction from the Delhi High Court against the Evershine STY. Industries for allegedly copying their unique get-up Lay-out and colour combination of blue and warm grey and selling their products under the Trade Mark FROG.

KANGARO , which is a renowned name in the office equipment and stationery goods industry, is actively taking steps to stop the infringers from copying and/or imitating their trade marks/ trade dress by enforcing their legal remedies.

KANGARO also successfully took similar action last year against the STELLAR for allegedly infringing their get-up, Lay-out and colour combination of blue and warm grey.

Mr. Amarjit Singh, Senior Partner, Amarjit & Associates, who represented Kangaro Industries Limited was successful in obtaining an ex-parte ad-interim injunction from Delhi High Court, whereby Honbl'e Justice, Mr. G. S. Sistani, restrained Evershine STY. Industries, their servants, agents, representatives, dealers from using impugned label, carton, packaging material as may be identical or deceptively similar to the KANGARO'S.
