With over eleven years of cutting edge experience and exploration within internet recruitment, OS2i, the premier global Recruitment Process Outsourcing (RPO) company, has officially launched its Internet Recruitment Training program, for the Indian recruitment industry

Over 96% companies browse through websites while recruiting. Yet, recruiters barely manage to scratch the surface of resume databases. OS2i's internet recruitment training course incorporates never-seen-before methodologies, techniques and strategies that target 10 times more resumes within and outside career sites.

The course covers the essential skills of online candidate search, networking to source 'hard to find' candidates, writing 'killer' adverts, and key communication techniques, with an in-depth training on analysis of roles and application of relevant sourcing methods.

With OS2i's internet recruitment training, recruiters can develop their advantage of finding candidates faster, and more effectively than other recruiters. The course also equips recruiters with tools that look at the unexpected places passive candidates work and play, and maps out methods to get to them quickly.

OS2i's internet recruitment training modules are tailored and in tune with client needs. 'In our experience as an offshore RPO, we are constantly evolving our processes to better align our services to the needs of our global partners. Our course modules reflect these innovative techniques and tools that have been honed over time by our expert internet recruiters', says Amarjeet Singh, Country Manager, Knowledge Acquisition, OS2i.

OS2i also offers partnering opportunities for educational institutes, business schools, and business houses that are looking to minimize their training & development costs, recruitment costs, and optimizing their recruitment processes.
