Singapore, Singapore, SGP, 2008-07-07 13:12:48 (IndiaPRwire.com)

In our increasingly competitive marketplace, there is less tolerance for unplanned downtime. Industry is experiencing the pressure of rising costs, foreign competition, and the need to improve work force productivity. Salvo Global's Maintenance Workshop provides an up-to-date overview of the current practices of Maintenance Planning and Scheduling.

The training course will be held from:

4th - 5th August 2008 in Jakarta, Indonesia

7th-8th August 2008 in Bangkok, Thailand.

It will be a perfect practice for maintenance and operations personnel who are responsible for delivering cost effective reliability and availability of plant and equipment.

In fact, these interactive sessions highlight the modern maintenance methods and techniques, with particular emphasis on selecting the right maintenance work and undertaking it at the right time, organizing maintenance resources, analyzing and understanding actual and potential failures and how to deal with them, estimating and controlling maintenance costs, measuring results and ensuring continuous improvement.

Speaking for this workshop is an international trainer, consultant and professional engineer with over 25 years of Industrial experience in machinery and maintenance field. He is currently an Engineering and Management Consultant and lecturer of Reliability Centred Maintenance (RCM), Total Productive Maintenance (TPM), World Class Manufacturing (WCM), Safety, Health & Environment (SHE), Risk Analysis and Management, HAZOP Studies at the University of Cape Town.
